UNESCO to use Pak heritage sites as venue to educate youth

DG UNESCO, Irina Bokova says people of Pakistan should feel proud to have such unique and interesting sites.

The United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization plans to use the world heritage sites of Pakistan as venue for educating young generation and teaching them about this long human history.

This has been stated by the Director General UNESCO Irina Bokova during her visit to Taxila.

She said the people of Pakistan should feel proud to have such unique and interesting sites.

She urged to continue protecting and preserving their heritage and also continue with the archaeological findings.
